

Study of State Statutes In Nation Shows Varied Opinions on Tax Levies

Nevada Is Only Instance Where Legislature Consistently Refuses To Levy Inheritance, Income or Estate Taxes.

MAINE SET PACE

Maine Was First State To Enact Inheritance and Estate Tax Law; New York Followed.

Kansas City, July 16 (AP).—Inheritance and estate tax statutes of the 48 states disclose that opinions of lawmakers differ chiefly in fixing the amount government may take from the wealth men accumulate.

In only one instance has a state legislature consistently refused to levy such taxes.

Nevada, the divorce state, has neither inheritance, estate nor income tax law, and its officials boast this has resulted in wealthy persons establishing legal residence there for the benefit of prospective heirs.

Inheritance and estate taxes brought the various states approximately $99,324,000 in 1934. This compares with $103,985,299 collected by the federal government in the same period.

An Associated Press survey shows levying or increasing such taxes—to which broad attention was attracted by President Roosevelt's "share the wealth" plan—has popped up at intervals for at least 42 years.

Maine Was First

Maine, source of the political maxim "as Maine goes, so goes the nation," enacted the first inheritance and estate tax law in 1893, and was followed two years later by New York. In 1903 Oregon and Wisconsin joined the procession and additions to the ranks were rapid after that.

Maine has been far outstripped, however, in the amount of taxes levied, exacting only from one to eight per cent and allowing from $500 to $10,000 exemptions.

Arkansas has the highest tax rate on large estates, taking 40 per cent on the top bracket of $10,000,000, but Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and Pennsylvania follow the federal statute of 1926 which allows the state 20 per cent of a 45 per cent tax in the top bracket, or 36 per cent of largest estates.

Idaho, Illinois and Missouri laws permit the state to take 30 per cent in the high classifications, and in Arizona, Nebraska, North Carolina and Washington as much as 25 per cent may be taken.

However, virtually all the states being at one or two per cent for relatively small bequests or estates.

8 States in 2 Years

Eight states—Utah, California, Idaho, Maryland, Michigan, New Hampshire, North Dakota and Washington—increased this type of tax in the past two years, most of them in 1935.

Three states—Kansas, Kentucky and Wisconsin—rejected legislative proposals to increase the levies, and one—Texas—actually reduced one classification.

Virginia increased some types of exemption, cut others, and Oklahoma reduced exemptions in several classifications to bring in revenue from small estates previously not taxed.

Louisiana—home of the "Kingfish"—Senator Huey Long, who so vociferously has demanded a nation "share the wealth" campaign, extracts from one to 10 per cent from estates.

Wording of statutes and disputes over home estates have caused several unusual situations to arise.

Other Battles

Colorado seeks to collect $328,000 from the estate of F. G. Bonfils, late publisher of the Denver Post, because a bequest of $2,800,000 was for the "Bonfils foundation for the benefit of humanity throughout the world." If the will had specified "humanity throughout Colorado," only this sum would have been exempt from this high bracket.

Pennsylvania and New Jersey now are warring over the legal residence of the late John T. Dorrance, the soap manufacturer, with $12,000,000 to $14,000,000 in the balance. Pennsylvania has collected the latter sum already, but New Jersey has filed a suit which the United States supreme court will be asked to decide.

New York's coffers have been enriched by huge sums, $5,500,000 coming in a lump from part of the storied fire-and-ice fortune after the death of Valma R. Woodworth. The Thomas Fortune Ryan estate yielded $22,000 in inheritance taxes, that of Payne Whitney $17,500,000, and of Harry Payne Whitney $9,500,000.

North Carolina now is trying to decide whether $2,000,000 is a sufficient levy on the $28,000,000 estate of the slain Smith Reynolds.

6 Students Do Potence

Berlin, July 16 (AP).—Six Heidelberg students, allegedly guilty of lese majeste in its modern German form, are expiating their felonious behavior in a concentration camp, the daily "Landpost" reported today. During the broadcast of a speech by Adolf Hitler, the six students of aristocratic families made unbecomingly noisy, it was charged, and started a farcical discussion of how Der Fuhrer was speaking.

Eaton Says the State Will Feel the Science Of Buying Elections

Albany, N. Y., June 16 (AP).—A prediction that President Roosevelt's home state this autumn will feel the "gentle science of buying elections" which Republicans allege was practiced last November in other states was made by G. O. P. State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton today.

Eaton said the Democrats would resort to "vote-buying" with federal and state funds in order to keep the Republicans from recapturing control of the Assembly, lower house of the state legislature.

The state chairman made his statements in a speech prepared for delivery at a conference of the state and legislative campaign committees.

"We had a sample of the use of federal relief and public works funds to control elections last November, when millions of dollars were poured into Michigan, Ohio, New Mexico, Maine and other doubtful states in an effort to elect Democrats, or to defeat Democrats who opposed Roosevelt policies," Eaton said.

"The experience gained by the administration this year in the gentle science of buying elections will, I feel confident, be utilized in this state between now and next November."

Eaton said the greatest menace to Republican hopes was the $450,000,000 PWA outlay under which 100,000 New Yorkers will be given jobs beginning this fall.

The Republicans seek to regain control of the Assembly, lost by a narrow margin last year for the first time in nearly a quarter of a century. "In my judgment the greatest threat to Republican success this fall is the impending dumping of federal and state funds into doubtful counties," Eaton said.

He told members of the committee to "keep a close watch on the disbursements of Democratic state and federal office holders in upstate counties so that we may take necessary steps at the first sign of vote-buying."

"I would reiterate to you that we have received definite information that this vote buying is contemplated, and that Democrats high in their party's councils have declared that, without it, Republican capture of the Assembly is inevitable," Eaton said.

"I tell you now, gentlemen, that the plan will not succeed, irrespective of how much money is poured into the state from Washington."

"I am very much pleased to report that there are fewer primary districts in the 42 counties than in previous years," he said.

The chairman said that although "such valuable institutions as Assemblymen McGinnis, Porter, Dunmore, Dunkel and Condon were retiring, he felt confident that their successors, with the help of the retiring men, will be elected by large pluralities."

Assemblyman Harry F. Dunkel, Glenville, and William Condon, Westchester, will run for the state senate.

May Identify Slain Man Through Laundry Marks Found On His Clothing

New York City Detectives Declare Two Laundry Marks on Pants of Victim Are New York City Marks.

CONTINUE PROBE

Police Believe Identification of Man Found in the Hudson Will Positively Be Made.

Identification of the murdered man who was found floating in the Hudson river near the Orange-Ulster line Saturday afternoon may be made through laundry marks found on clothing. The belief was expressed by detectives of the New York city police department after an all day investigation in New York city by Abram Molyneux, jailer at the Ulster county jail, and Sergeant John Lockhart of the New York State Police, and members of the New York city department. Aided by finger prints which were made by Chief of Police Wood and Officer Wesley Cramer, it is believed identification of the dead man will be positively made.

On the pants of the dead man, who apparently had been murdered in typical gangland fashion and then trussed up in a canvas, a pair of green portieres and their securely bound again in a canvas which was wired about the body and some 34 pounds of sash weights attached, were found several laundry marks. New York police are positive the marks are those of New York city laundries and a check-up is being made. It is on these laundry marks that the police pin their hopes of identification.

An investigation was made Monday both in the finger-print department and also in the Missing Persons Bureau in New York.

Close To Solution

In the Missing Persons Bureau the officers came close to a solution of the murder and this clue will be followed out today in an effort to determine whether the man found murdered and bound may not be a missing truck driver. Early in June a driver for a New York firm trucking fruit from Ulster county suddenly disappeared while on a trip to Ulster county. He has never been heard from. This man had a police record and the department had finger-prints as well as a description of him.

The missing man wore a blue zipper coat and a gray zipper shirt similar to the garments which were found on the body recovered from the river. However the body in the river had two crossed flags tattooed on the arm while there is no record of the truck driver having such marks. The family of the missing truck driver will be interviewed and photographs taken by Pennington of the body recovered here will be shown them in an effort to determine whether the body is that of the missing truck driver.

Due to the badly decomposed condition of the body when taken from the water it was difficult to secure good finger-prints although those taken by Chief Wood and Officer Cramer were considered excellent under the circumstances. With the finger-prints to work on and the numerous marks on the clothing the police have several leads to follow.

On the pants of the dead man were at least two laundry marks which have been determined to be New York city marks. In addition there were trade-marks on various items of clothing which the murderers failed to remove, apparently because they were convinced that the body was so securely trussed up and weighted down that it never would come to the surface. However, the vast amount of cloth and canvas added to the buoyancy of the body when it filled with gas and despite the heavy weights it came to the surface.

The local officials, under the direction of District Attorney Cleon B. Murray, will continue their investigation in cooperation with the New York city police. This is being done on the theory that the murdered man was in some way connected with metropolitan criminals and was killed to silence him because he was considered to know too much.

Harry B. Walker says on the charter: As a member of the board of Fire Commissioners during my term of six years I experienced many times that our present charter is obsolete and in many ways is hindering the progress of our city advancement. Personally I think the charter revision to be voted on July 23 will be a great benefit to the taxpayers as well as the rest of our citizens. I know well that it is only a question of time that legislation will compel us to take this same step whether we want it or not. I must say for the benefit of the city that this charter should not interfere in any way with the volunteer fire department as there are three distinct sections of the city, namely, Poughkeepsie, Wiltbur and Hightstown, which are covered by volunteer companies. And the members are 100 per cent firemen. During my experience on the fire commission the board did everything in its power to help the volunteer department as much as possible. We have these firemen, we need them and should keep them.

Kingstonians For and Against Proposed New City Charter

67 Rico Way, San Francisco, Cal.

July 14, 1935.
To the Readers of The Kingston Daily Freeman:

My work necessitates my being away from Kingston at this time, but I am very eager that the citizens of Kingston endorse the work of the charter committee and approve the new charter on July 23.

As a member of the charter committee I would state that all the provisions in this proposed charter are the result of serious consideration. While we do not think it perfect, we do think it is a vast improvement over the present charter and one that should be a foundation for an efficient city government. The fundamental changes are the items which the voters should keep in mind. Amendments may be made some future time by local law or ordinance, should any of the provisions work unsatisfactorily.

The new charter concentrates executive authority in the mayor and a board of estimate. The common council is a purely legislative body as it should be. All department heads are directly responsible to the mayor and he is responsible to the people for efficient management. Should the mayor prove unsatisfactory to the voters his powers may be checked in two years by electing opposition members to the board of estimate. The four year term of office should make for more efficient administration; help to attract better men to the office and lead to more orderly government free from petty politics.

The common council will make all appropriations, approving or reducing the items of the budget prepared by the board of estimate but never increasing the same. The election of the members of the council from the city at large is another fundamental change. This method of electing the council should give men who would take into consideration the needs of the city as a whole, and remove them from the "log-rolling" of ward politics.

The change from the present boards in charge of the various departments to heads of departments appointed by and responsible to the mayor is another fundamental change. If we are to hold the mayor responsible for the efficient management of the city, we must give him authority over its departments. Kingston has been very fortunate in the caliber of men serving on its various boards. That has been the only reason these boards have worked out as well as they have under the looseness of the present charter. This change in the charter is no reflection upon the past work of these boards but that concentration of authority will concentrate responsibility.

After giving these items and other minor items in the new charter careful consideration, I would ask that every voter register his decision on July 23. I hope a large vote will be registered so as not to allow this serious question of charter revision to be decided by a minority. I, of course, hope the new charter will be adopted. But the main point is to vote.

Either pro or con—vote! Yours very truly, W. E. JOYCE.

AAA Process Taxes Ruled Unconstitutional By Court

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Finds No Authority To Impose Such Levies Invested in Secretary of Agriculture.

Boston, July 16 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today held unconstitutional the processing and floor taxes imposed under the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

The court found that no such authority to impose taxes had been delegated to the secretary of agriculture by the Constitution or by decision of the Supreme Court.

The Circuit Court's decision was based upon a test case brought by receivers of the Hoosier Mills, which sought recovery of $81,694.48.

The decision was subscribed to by Judges Cott Wilson and George F. Morris. Judge George H. Bingham, senior justice, dissented.

"It is clear," said the decision, that the main purposes of the act, "is to control and regulate the production of the so-called basic agricultural commodities of the several states, through agreements with the producers and in consideration of what is termed rental or benefit payments, to reduce acreage or production for market sufficient to increase the current average price of such products to the farmer from the returns to the farmer from the production of such commodities will purchase under present conditions the same amount of industrial products that the returns to the farmer from the same products would buy in the five year pre-war period from July 1909 to August 1914."

Bobby Linsig, Without Esophagus, Enjoys Life

Marlborough, N. Y., July 16 (AP).—Bobby Linsig, only child in recent medical history to live without an esophagus, had a birthday today and celebrated by chewing on a brand new "pacifier."

It was just five months ago that Bobby was born in a Newburgh hospital and physicians feared he could not live because the main food passage to the stomach was lacking. Now he weighs 14 pounds and is as healthy and lively as any normal child.

The "pacifier," although usually frowned upon by physicians, was given Bobby to help develop his gums. It is the only exercise the gums receive as all of the child's food is inserted through a tube to the stomach. If he doesn't get the "pacifier" at the regular time, Bobby asserts himself by loud and vigorous complaints.

Mrs. Raymond Linsig, the child's mother, feeds him 5 1/2 ounces of milk formula three times daily. He also is fed cod liver oil and orange juice. During the feeding period Bobby amuses himself by playing with his fingers and "cooing" to himself.

No X-rays have been taken since the child left the hospital three months ago. Surgeons plan to attempt to construct an artificial esophagus when Bobby is six years old if he continues to gain and is strong enough for a major operation.

New Deal Legislation Has Now Suffered Two More Judicial Blows

Washington, July 16 (AP).—New Deal legislation, which suffered a number of setbacks in the Supreme Court last spring, has felt two more judicial blows in the last two days.

At Boston, a United States circuit court today held unconstitutional the collection of processing taxes imposed under the agricultural adjustment act.

Yesterday a circuit court at Cincinnati, in a Louisville case, ruled that the Federal government could not exercise the power of eminent domain in acquiring land for housing projects.

The New Deal was first hit hard by the courts when Section 9 (C) of the National Industrial Recovery Act, giving the President the power to regulate shipments of illegally-produced oil, was held by the Supreme Court to be an unauthorized delegation of legislative power.

Next came the famous gold clause cases, in which the administration both won and lost ground. The high court ruled that the government could not go back on its promise to pay its own bonds in gold or the equivalent. By a 5-4 decision, however, it held that bondholders who brought the suits in question had failed to show they actually were damaged by the government's policy. Legislation to prevent such bondholders from filing new suits and attempting to prove they had been damaged has been proposed by President Roosevelt.

The railroad pension act, while not an administration measure, involved questions similar to those raised by the New Deal social legislation. It was knocked out by the Supreme Court. It would have granted pensions to railroad employees when they reached a certain age.

The greatest setback to the administration was the "triple play" of May 27. The Supreme Court first ruled that the President could not remove a member of a quasi-judicial body except for cause in a case involving the ousting of a member of the Federal Trade Commission who died before the case was decided.

The court next ruled unconstitutional a section of the Federal Land Bank act granting a virtual life-term appointment on farm mortgages. This was not an administration measure, but President Roosevelt had signed the bill.

Then, in the Schechter poultry case, came the unanimous decision knocking out all NRA codes. The court ruled in that case that Congress had improperly delegated code-making powers to the President, and the Federal government could not regulate intra-state business and industry.

Anti-Roth Rides

Berlin, July 16 (AP).—Anti-Roth riding last night brought forth a "warning" to elements inimical to the state by the state police today. It followed demonstrations on the Kurtensendamm Boulevard which lasted until the early hours of the morning and which the press called a "demonstration on growing Jewish arrogance."

Slight Advance in Employment Noted

Albany, July 16 (Special)—Employment for the construction industry in New York state advanced only 1.1 per cent from May to June, according to a statement issued today by Industrial Commissioner Elmer P. Andrews. Payrolls increased 1.1 per cent and man-hours one-tenth per cent. This statement is based on the reports of approximately 1,800 contractors reporting each month to the New York State Department of Labor's Division of Statistics and Information.

Two hundred and fifty of the reporting firms were engaged on federal, state, county or municipal projects in June. They employed 14,135, or 48 per cent of the total. Of the 14,125 employed on government projects in June, 42 per cent were working for highway contractors, 23 per cent for general building contractors, 20 per cent for miscellaneous general contractors and 15 per cent for subcontractors.

Employment, payrolls and hours for all kinds of contracting gained upstate, percentage increases amounting to 13 per cent for employment and hours, and 10 per cent for payrolls. In New York city, employment dropped 9 per cent, payrolls 4 per cent and hours 10 per cent. New York city's only general gain in employment, payrolls and hours was reported by subcontractors.

Heir Of Young Astor Will Receive Heritage Of 'Meat, Music, Millions'

By CHARLES NORMAN

New York (AP)—Meat, music and millions.

That is the story of the Astor fortune reduced to its simplest terms—the historic background into which the expected child and heir of John Jacob Astor III and his wife, the former Ellen Tuck French, will be born. The Astors were married in June, 1934.

The story begins in Waldorf, in the Duchy of Baden, Germany, with Jacob Astor, butcher.

His sons refused to follow in their father's footsteps. One of them, John Jacob Astor, almost 21, arrived in America in March 1784. His stock in trade consisted of seven German flutes.

Even after he had successfully established himself in the lucrative fur trade of the new nation, his sign told the world that he sold "Furs and Pianos," showing a continued interest in musical instruments.

When he died in 1848, he left a fortune of $20,000,000.

John Jacob Astor married Sarah Todd.

His son William married Margaret Armstrong, daughter of General John and Alida Livingston Armstrong.

William died November 24, 1875, on the site of the old Waldorf-Astoria hotel, 34th street and Fifth avenue, where the Empire State building now stands.

William Was Yachtsman

William's fifth child, a son, also called William, was born July 12, 1830.

This William, who married Caroline Schermerhorn, of an old Dutch family, and who died in Paris in 1892, was a noted yachtsman. One of the finest yachts of his day, which he owned, was the Nourmahal, name of the yacht now in the possession of Vincent Astor, on board which President Roosevelt is a frequent guest.

William had five children, four of them daughters. The son was John Jacob Astor II, born July 13, 1864, who went down on the Titanic. John Jacob was married twice—to Miss Ava L. Willing of Philadelphia, to whom Vincent Astor was born, November 15, 1891, and to Miss Madeline Force on September 9, 1911, to whom the present John Jacob Astor was born, August 14, 1912, after his father's death.

New Chapter In a Family Epic

John Jacob Astor III, and his wife, formerly Ellen Tuck French, will offer a new chapter in the history of the Astor family when their expected child arrives. Back of the young couple is a diagram showing the direct line of the Astor family from Jacob, a German butcher, to the half-brothers, Vincent and John Jacob III. The latter was born in 1912.

A daughter by the first marriage was left $5,000,000. A trust of $3,000,000 was set up for the expected child of the second Mrs. Astor. There was no mention of his first wife in the will. The young John Jacob was to come into possession of his fortune at 21. He is now 23 and has a job with one of the big steamship companies of this city.

Fortune Passed To Vincent

The elder John Jacob Astor's fortune, estimated at around $90,000,000, was left largely to his son, Vincent, who now is without direct heir.

Events Around The Empire State

Lowville, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—Thomas John Rogers, 35, Lyons Falls, died last night from injuries suffered when he was hit in the face by a 50-pound block of pulpwood which flew from a saw at the Gould paper mill at Lyons Falls.

Binghamton, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—A game of "follow-the-leader" cost James Matlas, 7, of Binghamton, his life. He fractured his arm yesterday as he jumped from a porch railing to the ground and doctors at a local hospital said that death resulted from a plugged artery.

Dunkirk, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—Two men are dead and a third is in a serious condition today after being hurled 50 feet to the ground when a scaffold broke here yesterday. The dead are William Hayes, 68, father of three children, and Nicholas Nacca, 30. Stanley Nekus suffered severe body injuries.

Ossining, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—The Rev. George H. Flick of Oswego is among 17 priests from the Mary-Knoll seminary who will start for the Far East July 28. They will be assigned to posts in Manchukuo, China, Japan and Korea, the Catholic Foreign Missionary Society of America announced last night.

Another Value Fact that PROVES why GMC trucks out-perform and out-earn

Comparison, part by part, will quickly and convincingly prove to any truck buyer that a GMC excels each of its chief competitors on a number of vital counts. . . . For instance, the engine of the GMC 1½-ton truck develops greater sustained torque than any one of its chief competitors. This means that it will climb steeper grades at faster speeds or pull heavier loads faster—in short, accomplish more work in a given time. . . . Get all the facts about the GMC that fits your needs. "Moondoggling" Boys Along Big Alley Walk Out on Celestial Show

Police Cars Chasing Fleeing Vehicle and Street Hawker With Toy Airplanes, Window Displays and Other Things Take Manhattan's Eye—Kingston Has Rain.

New York, July 16 (AP).—Broadway took that colossal astronomical spectacle of the moon in eclipse with much the same casual interest it shows toward excavations and window demonstrators.

Still, since there was nothing better to do, the boys along the big alley, between 45th and 44th streets, indulged briefly in what one scolding taxi driver termed "moondoggling."

The short block commanded the best view because the moon elected to pass conveniently over the low top of an ancient theatre in the process of being razed.

The Proper Awe.
There was, in this sector, only one person found who showed a proper appreciation of the event. He was an old negro, who stood with his hat off, gazing with awe as the darkness bit into the face of the moon.

"How do the moon and the sun get together at this time of night?" he asked, scratching his head.

A cab driver tried to clarify the phenomenon.

"It's the earth getting in the way of the sun," he declared.

A colleague scoffed at this.

"You tell me how the earth can do that," he said. "We're standing on the earth. It can't be up there."

Some Sneak Peek—Depart.

This discussion had entailed gazing at the heavens—an act which had its usual effect of causing a small crowd to gather. Most of the folks sneaked a peek and proceeded, inspecting more immediate and vital things in shop windows.

Two regrettable occurrences diverted the street's attention. First, a fleeing automobile with four police squad cars in close pursuit careened around the corner and speeded up 45th street. Half of the eclipse students ran over to watch the chase.

Next, a hawk came on the scene, and shouting superlatives, placed small mechanical toys on the sidewalk.

The toys—airplanes with whirling propellers—ran over the sidewalk in fascinating circles.

The audience walked out on the celestial drama. Everyone watched the toys.

Federal Agents Seek Killer of 2 Officers

Tacoma, Wash., July 16 (AP).—Department of Justice agents joined possemen today in the search for the slayer of the two Puyallup policemen while some authorities expressed the belief the fugitive was William Dainard, alleged "brains" of the George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping.

With highways blocked by police, searchers plunged through underbrush in the Puyallup valley hoping to trap the killer who shot the officers while they were seeking a bank robber.

The victims were Chief of Police Frank Chadwick and Patrolman Harry W. Storen.

Two Justice Department agents joined the search, a fact which increased speculation on whether the slayer might be Dainard, alias Mahan.

Capt. Ernie Yorl of the King county (Seattle) sheriff's office expressed belief the fugitive might be Dainard. Justice Department agents admitted "it was possible," although they indicated they did not take the reports seriously.

The officers were killed in a burst of gunfire on a road outside Puyallup while they were seeking the man who held up and robbed the Oring State Bank of $500.

Shortly after the robbery was reported, Chadwick and Storen raced away to intercept the bandit. Near the farm of John Urdea the officers drew alongside the robber's car.

Urdea said the man got out of his car, walked around to the police automobile and suddenly opened fire.

"There were no shots from the police car," the farmer said. Then the man jumped into his car and raced toward Buckley.

Both officers died within a few minutes and less than an hour later the killer's automobile was found near Summer.

Dainard, an ex-convict, is wanted on bank robbery charges in four western Washington cities.

Late yesterday afternoon Police Chief M. Jastram of Centralia reported a man resembling Dainard had been seen there in a soft drink parlor. Centralia is about 75 miles south of Tacoma.

Jastram declared the man appeared nervous while in the parlor and disappeared hurriedly after purchasing a drink. The chief said the suspect was described as having a birthmark on his upper lip, whereas Dainard has a scar there.

Years ago the making of guns entirely by hand was one of the chief industries of Guilford county, N. C.

FREEDOM TO TEACH.

The National Education Association in Denver seems to have taken an intelligent and thoroughly American position with regard to "Americanism." It adopted two resolutions which may seem to be conflicting, but are not really so. First it voted for the so-called "American" declaration, which says:

The National Education Association believes that the fundamental principles of American democracy are the best ever so far designed by the minds of men to govern people, and pledges itself so to teach the youth of the land.

This is a strong statement. Some of us may not be so sure that our Constitution would fit all other nations so well. But nearly all of us agree that it is best for us, and want our children taught so. The second resolution, on "freedom," says:

The National Education Association believes that administrators, teachers and schools should have full opportunity to present different points of view on all controversial questions, in order to aid students to adjust themselves to their environment and to changing social conditions.

This is the principle which is applied in most colleges as a matter of course, but whose application in public schools sometimes gets teachers into trouble. The idea is that boys and girls should learn about all kinds of political and economic systems, just as they learn about all kinds of arts and sciences. This is right, and a part of general education, because all kinds of people have to live together in the same world and even the same country. It is proper and sensible to teach boys and girls "about" these alien beliefs without advocating them. This is "academic freedom," the result of which, when properly used, is to enable our young people to develop the intelligent preference of educated men and women for our preferred system of life, instead of a mere ignorant loyalty.

FUTURE HIGHWAYS.

Another interesting shadow of things to come is the plan for a motor highway submitted by Prof. John S. Worley, of the University of Michigan. The right of way is 200 feet wide, with two strips of pavement each 20 feet wide to start with and others to be added as required. Grades are separated at railroad and at all intersections with main highways. Curves are flattened so as to make a car visible always at least 1,500 feet away. Grades, of course, are gentle.

Imagine a few boulevards like this gridironing the country from east to west and north to south. Wouldn't it make a tourist's paradise? It would burn up a lot of gas, too. But perhaps the light Diesel motors, whose pioneers are already in the automotive field, will lighten the fuel cost.

The government was rather expected to build a few futuristic trunk lines with its work relief fund. The need of putting the money into wages rather than materials has ended that prospect for the present—the road money is going for secondary gravel roads. But a time will come.

RENOVIZING

"It takes a heap o' living in a house to make it home," wrote Eddie Guest. And now a minister says in a sermon "You can finish building a house but you can never finish building a home."

The latter statement is certainly true in these days, with all the renovizing that's going on. What with the government modernizing towns and the national inclination of householders to tinker and change and improve and spoil, this is going to be a very busy summer. People are not building new homes as rapidly as they should, if the building industry is going to bring prosperity back with a rush, but they are certainly renovizing with a will.

one. Ted Robinson, a friend of Eddie Guest, writes on this theme: If rest is what you want, you'd better take a trip abroad. For homes must be continuously hammered, chopped and sawed. A barn can be completed, or a palace, or a home. But it takes a heap o' building on a house to make it home.

SILENT NIGHTS.

Big cities have been trying for years to reduce the amount of unnecessary noise beating on human ear drums and nervous systems. It remained for the village of Essex Falls, N. J., to put a ban on the crowing of cocks, and quacking of ducks and the barking of dogs before 6 a. m. The village council apparently meant business, too, for they attached to the ordinance penalties ranging from $5 to $20 for owners of dogs, roosters or ducks who "permit" them to disobey the law.

Other villages will watch Essex Falls to see how the law is enforced. Public officials, of course, can impose fines. But how can owners of roosters, for example, prevent their crowing before 6 a. m.? It may be necessary to build soundproof poultry houses and muzzle the dogs. And why were yowling cats omitted?

That Body of Yours

HEART DISEASE

The most serious forms of heart disease do not cause any pain or discomfort or even the consciousness of the heart whatsoever. This is so true that it may be said that heart disease is a disease without symptoms. When there are symptoms it is when some other organ has become involved and the heart disease has existed for a long time.

What, then, are the signs of heart disease? So long as the heart is able to do its work properly, there are no signs. A valve may leak or be obstructed, the heart may be enormously enlarged or underdeveloped, or the muscles of the heart may be affected, but as long as the heart does not break down in its task of circulating the blood there are no signs of any trouble as far as the patient knows.

When, however, the heart fails to pump the blood, there is stagnation in the lungs and the person has shortness of breath, or there is stagnation in the feet and they become swollen and puffed up, or stagnation in the liver and there is pain when pressure is made over the liver.

So we may say that shortness of breath, swelling of the feet, and tenderness over the liver are the cardinal or outstanding signs of heart trouble.

In this clear and simple language Prof. Louis Fagueres Bishop, Fordham University, tells us what we all should know about the signs of heart disease. Thus up to the time the signs—shortness of breath, swelling of the feet and tenderness over the liver—occur, any trouble that exists in the heart can only be found by an examination which may reveal facts that will later on cause the above signs.

Now there can be pain of course in the heart region in some forms of heart ailment when there is exertion, overeating or an emotional disturbance. This occurs in angina pectoris of which I have frequently written.

The point then is that the heart may have considerable trouble within it and there will be no signs or symptoms.

The thought then is that an examination of the heart by your physician will reveal that you have heart trouble or you haven't.

If you have heart trouble your physician can outline a course of treatment and a safe method of living. If you have no heart trouble it is worth while knowing it.

READY MADE WIFE

BY CORALIE STANTON

SYNOPSIS: Rex Moore has come home from a long absence. He is a rich man, and he is a good man. He is a good man, and he is a rich man. He is a good man, and he is a rich man. He is a good man, and he is a rich man.

Chapter 24

THE MEETING

IT WAS NEWS to Rex Moore that Laurie and her sister had spent the week end at the Albany house in the country. Well, why not? Albany was evidently in love with Laurie. And when they parted, he and she, when this fact had played itself out, Albany would no doubt marry her. And it would be a great match for her and a splendid life.

What had it got to do with him? She would have done very well out of being his widow for two years.

He stifled an angry laugh, as he rose to go. But he was going to do very well out of it, too. He was going to get everything he could out of Albany. This fight, after two years, had been like the taste of blood to a tiger, and it was only through Albany that he could continue his career.

Laurie was alone in the sitting-room when Rex came back. "Glady told me you were here," she said. Her voice was cold, but she took an involuntary step forward, as her eyes met his. "You might have let me know."

"I'm sorry I didn't think of it," he answered. His voice was rough. "I'd clean forgotten that your sister was here and that I ought to do the proper thing. But, after all, it will make things easier for you for her to know from the first that I'm an unmarried man."

Her voice was withering. "I've had enough of it. You've covered yourself with glory again, haven't you? Mr. Albany thinks the world of you. Your position with him is quite safe. We can make an end of it now, can't we?"

"That was the last question you asked me before I went to Africa," he reminded her. "You seem to think of nothing else."

"Why should I? It was our bargain, wasn't it?"

"Yes—And then, all in a moment, he looked at her, and she was quite different. She was not the same girl. He could not explain it; he did not understand. But for the first time he saw her blue eyes, soft and dark, like sapphires, and her glossy chestnut hair, and he knew that she was beautiful, desirable, wonderful. And he said to himself, "But I don't want to make an end of it!"

And his eyes held Laurie's, and, strangely enough, it was the same with her. She saw him for the first time, his strength, the deep, lean poise of his head, the deep, compelling gaze of his grey eyes, the sudden pulsating humanity of him when he smiled. She saw him, splendid, wonderful—the most wonderful man in the world.

And she said to herself—"What's the matter with me? He hasn't changed. He's Rex Moore—so, he isn't! He's the Rex Moore I dreamed of! I don't hate him any more. I want to go close to him. I want to stay with him. I don't want to go away."

AND because a woman is always more frightened when she discovers that she loves a man than a man is when he discovers he loves a woman, Laurie suddenly gave a stifled little cry and hurried to the door.

"I'm tired—I've got a busy day tomorrow. Good-night!"

He put out his hand, but she brushed past him. She was shaking all over. She was terrified of tumbling down, when he would pick her up and she would be lost.

"But Laurie, I've got a lot to tell you!"

"Why, even his voice was new! It was warm; it drew her to him; it stole round her heart. But there was only one thought in her mind—to hide this madness from him."

"Tomorrow will do," she called out lightly. "Honestly, I'm tired. We can talk much better in the morning."

Through the long, sleepless hours of the night Laurie said to herself, "I must be mad. I can't be in love."

Mr. and Mrs. John Perrett of Massena Lake, Warrensburg, and son, Jack, former residents of this village, called on Mr. and Mrs. Weismar and Mrs. Ella Hahn on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Fred Huseman and Mr. and Mrs. McDonald were in Kingston on Saturday week.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gromel of New Salem spent Friday afternoon with Mrs. Ella Hahn.

with him. Why should I? What would he think? How he would laugh! It would just appeal to his cruel sense; to be his wife in order to see his job, to finish with Mrs. Albany, who employs both of them, Rex is telephoned by Wanda Steele, a woman he seldom sees, to come to a party, and goes to call on her. Mrs. Steele's generosity has saved Rex's night, but she wants more from him than gratitude. She wants love.

"It will be all right in the morning," she comforted herself. "It must be this ridiculous artificial life. Of course, it's all rubbish. My nerves are in pieces. When we separate, there's Mrs. Steele waiting for him. Of course, he'll marry her. Look what she can do for him with all her money. He'll be quite independent of Mr. Albany—of everybody. The first thing he did when he got back was to go to see her."

And so on, round and round in a circle, the same thoughts, all merging into the memory of Rex Moore's voice that had suddenly caught her heart, saying:—"But Laurie, I've got a lot to tell you!"

Rubbish! What could he have to tell her?

With Rex Moore it was different. To begin with, he was physically and mentally exhausted after his arduous fight, and he slept quite a good deal.

But when he did wake up now and then, and especially after dawn, his thoughts did run on somewhat the same lines as Laurie's, although he was not so shattered as she was by the discovery, but more angry with himself.

"Might have made a fool of myself," he reflected. "What ever would she have thought? That I was crazy, no doubt. I think I am. But there it is, I believe I'm in love with her. How ridiculous! She hates the sight of me."

AND so on and so on; the same thoughts, all merging into the memory of Laurie's face, seeing it, as if for the first time—the soft blue eyes, the loveliness of the little trembling smile, the sudden appeal to his manhood, the fierce desire to take her in his arms. And then the blankness when she hurried out of the room with light, careless words of rebuff, like a slap in the face.

Well, anyhow, he hadn't given himself away.

Presently, he was splashing in his cold bath, and planning to spend the whole of the day on the last of the articles for the American newspaper.

He had written all the others while on his trip, waiting for the rescue party to fetch the missing almanac. He had had no sleep for two whole nights. When this one was written, he would be able to pay back half the money Albany had lent him. That would give him a free hand.

As to Wanda Steele and his debt to her, he would have to find some way of settling that.

His discovery that he had fallen in love with the girl who was supposed to be his wife, therefore, had undoubtedly altered his outlook on life, but it had not altered his world, as Laurie was to be the case with Laurie.

Laurie came into the dining-room when Rex had just finished his breakfast. She looked very smart and cool in her neat dark blue office attire, and she seemed to be in high spirits, although her eyes had a somewhat fixed expression.

Glady had gone to rehearsal in Finbury Park, where they were opening in another week's time. While they were in the nearer suburbs, she was staying in the flat; but, later, when they went farther afield the troupe would have to live in lodgings again.

Laurie had had her breakfast with her sister an hour ago. Rex had been for a run around Battersea Park before his as his was his custom.

"Well, you said we could talk better in the morning," he said. "Have you time now?"

"If you like, I am not due at the office for three-quarters of an hour."

That touched him on the raw, as from now onwards every reference to her association with her employer must do.

"I understand you had something you wish to discuss," he said, gruffly.

His voice and manner reminded her of the man in the train the first day they had met. And it came to her more that from that moment this spark had been struck from her being that was now alight and that made her furious and miserable at the same time.

Yes, it was true. Morning hadn't changed it. She wasn't mad; he mattered more to her than anything in the world.

(Copyright, 1935, Coralie Stanton)

Tomorrow, Rex and Laurie try to plan their future.

Politics at Random

RENEWED left-wing efforts to organize a first-line third party have served chiefly to demonstrate how remote such a development really is.

Nearly all of the nationally-known liberal leaders who would have to be depended on to give force and standing to the movement have either shied away from it or counseled delay.

A few months ago a formidable third-party ticket, to the left of Mr. Roosevelt, was regarded by many politicians as almost assured. Several things have contributed to the change. On the one hand, Mr. Roosevelt himself is looked upon now by a large section of political opinion as having moved rather definitely toward the left, with his advocacy of such measures as the Guffey coal bill, the Wagner labor bill, the new tax plan, and stringent utility regulation.

Besides, there is much food for thought in what the republicans are doing. A definite revival of republican hope is apparent as steps are taken to reorganize that party along more conservative lines. If the republicans are to become ultra-conservative, say some of the left-wingers, why enhance their prospects of winning in 1936 by splitting the left-wing opposition?

Democrats Keep Senate

ONE of the oddities of the 1934 situation is that, whoever is elected president and no matter what kind of a landslide may develop in the house elections, the democrats are sure to retain control of the senate for another two years.

Only one-third of the senators are elected at one time. Two-thirds of the present membership will not be in any way affected by the 1936 election. And exactly 50 of these hold-overs are democrats—a clean majority of the full senate membership of 96.

If the republicans sweep every one of the senatorial elections next year, they still will be in the minority.

On top of that, 12 of the 32 seats to be filled in 1936 are in the democratic south—in Tennessee, North Carolina, Alabama, South Carolina, Virginia, Oklahoma, Mississippi, Kentucky, Louisiana, Arkansas, Georgia, and Texas.

Normally, all of these 12 places would be expected to go to the democrats, giving them an assurance of 62 of the 96 senate seats in the next Congress.

It would seem that if the republicans make an exceptional sweep, they may wind up with about one-third of the spoils.

No Tax Raise Danger

WHATEVER may come out of the tax squabble in congress—and the possibilities are many—the citizen of ordinary means need not worry about having his taxes increased next year.

A tax raise for the rank and file of the voters is one of those things which simply don't come to pass immediately preceding a campaign year.

Talk of a general revision, with increases all along the line to meet the deficit, may sound well but no one would expect it to muster many votes on Capitol Hill. Not only the President but every one of the 435 members of the house and 96 of the senators come up for reelection in 1936, and all of them know that higher taxes never are popular.

General tax increases come after elections, not just before. By that token, a different forecast may be in order after the votes are in in 1936.

Small Fruits

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

The children had spent the last couple of days picking blueberries which were plentiful in the woods near their summer home. Their mother knew that fruit was healthy and was therefore quite easy in her mind as she watched them indulging in such harmless sweets. She was, as a result, the more surprised when they all became violently sick within a few hours of one another. For a whole day and night she was kept busy.

At first she feared an infection due to milk or water, but in the end she traced the trouble back to the blueberries. There are many people whose systems cannot tolerate fruits with small seeds. The seeds collect in the digestive tracts and block the normal functioning of the processes of elimination. As a result violent nausea ensues.

A reasonable amount of strawberries, blackberries, blueberries or raspberries the average digestion can cope with. It is when children are permitted to gather and eat them as they like that there is apt to be trouble.

Of course children eat whatever is at hand and looks as if it were edible. Sassafras, blackberry, berries have been part of childhood's diet from time immemorial. None the less, some restrictions should be placed on this indiscriminate nibbling, and a beginning might advantageously be made with berries. There are poisonous berries as well as harmless ones, and on these grounds a rule may be made that without special permission no berries should be eaten.

In this way some supervision of the amount of small fruit tucked away in eternally empty little stomachs can be maintained, and there will be fewer upset digestions during the summer months.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON — To those unfamiliar with the vagaries of politics, the hullabaloo raised on Capitol Hill by the secret vote on the "death sentence" provision in the utility holding company bill in the house, may appear rather strange.

Actually a new strategy has been developed in this congress to avoid roll call votes on controversial legislation. Leaders on both sides in the house have cooperated, whenever they could to keep the members from being "put on the spot."

That's what happened on the "death sentence" provision of the holding company bill. There was political dynamite in it for all concerned. Constituents back home are sharply divided on the issue. Whatever way many of the representatives voted they were certain to run into trouble if their votes became known.

Threats of punitive action by the administration against those opposed to the "death sentence" were issued on Capitol Hill. Those opposed to the bill were threatened with loss of work-relief funds to deprivation of patronage.

It's Been Done Before

WHILE the secrecy thrives around the individual votes of house members on the "death sentence" came in for all sorts of publicity, the procedure has been followed on several occasions by the current congress. Only passing reference was made to previous instances.

The Advertisement

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Mrs. QUACKO DUCK drove me over in her one-and-a-half cylinder duck coupe to get the papers from the nearest town we have in these parts," continued Willy Nilly. "I'm going to put an advertisement in the paper they have in that place. If I hurry now I ought to be able to get there in my automobile. Two-Ways in about two hours I should say. It's still quite early and I think it should be time enough for us to get the advertisement in before their papers are on the street this afternoon."

Willy Nilly took a piece of paper and wrote:

"LOST! A crow dog with a longish tail and beautiful eyes and soft, silky ears. Without a collar or license, but belongs to Willy Nilly of Puddle Muddle. Dog answers to the name of Rip. Will the finder please return as all hearts are broken in Puddle Muddle until our dog comes back to us."

Then Willy Nilly added a brief description of how Puddle Muddle could be found and at the end of the advertisement he put:

"Finder may pick out his own reward."

Income Tax 'Old Stuff' To Britons —Rate Much Higher Than In U. S.

By DON JOSEPH

New York (AP)—The American income tax payer, groaning under the prospect of new government demands on his pocketbook, may pause to shed a tear for his English cousin who has been paying a much heavier tax for a longer period.

Whereas the first income tax was levied in the United States in 1913, as far back as 1884 in England W. S. Gilbert had his king come on the stage in the operetta "Princess Ida," and sing:

"I know everybody's income and what everybody earns;

"And I carefully compare it with the income tax returns."

And then go on to complain:

"But to benefit humanity however much I plan,

"Yet everybody says I'm such a disagreeable man!

"And I can't think why!"

English Pay More

Similar complaints may be heard some day in American musical comedies, although the English still seem to have a greater cause for objection.

Not only is the per capita tax burden greater in England ($99.11 in 1934) than in the United States ($74.37), but the British government, with its years of experience, seems to collect its revenues with a firmer hand.

Nearly twice as many field men are employed for this purpose in England as in America. In 1934, the report to the joint congressional committee on internal revenue taxation noted that there were 22,589 members in the personnel of the British revenue service; while the United States was employing 11,524.

Longer Claims Period

The British income tax collector is also the possessor of wider powers than the American, and whereas American taxpayers are allowed a three-year period within which claims for refunds may be made, and another two years may be spent by them in the courts, the disgruntled Britisher must file his appeal within 21 days.

While an English married man with three children, deriving an income of £50,000 or $250,000 from investment, may have to pay $133,620 in income and surtaxes, an American in the same situation today would have as his limit an income tax of $9,840, and a surtax of $105,502, or a total tax of $115,342.

Incomes Of $1,500 Hit

In both estate and income taxes the British tax gatherer's fist hits lower in the body economic than that of his American confrere. A married Briton starts handing part of his earnings over to the government when his salary reaches $1,500 a year.

A married American waits until he is raised to $2,500 before he starts making these federal contributions.

Americans may die without thinking of the tax collector unless their estates are going to net over $50,000. When an Englishman dies, the government lays a levying hand on his earthly possessions if they represent $500 or more.

American and British estate tax levies compare as follows:

Net Estate	U. S. Tax	British Tax
$2,500	None	$25
$5,000	None	$100
$25,000	None	$750
$50,000	None	$2,000
$100,000	$1,500	$5,000
$500,000	$5,100	$95,000
$1,000,000	$16,100	$240,000
$10,000,000	$4,287,600	$4,500,000
$100,000,000	$53,386,600	$50,000,000

American and British income tax levies for married men with no dependents compare as follows:

Net Income	U. S. Tax	British Tax*
$1,000	None	None
$2,000	None	$67.50
$4,000	$44	$427.50
$5,000	$50	$467.50
$10,000	$415	$1,620.00
$25,000	$2,489	$6,479.23
$50,000	$8,869	$21,216.88
$100,000	$20,394	$43,375.39
$1,000,000	$571,394	$612,529.28

TWENTY FIVE YEARS Ago

IN July 1910, we founded the American Oil Company. It was a very small beginning, and there was no excitement except in the hearts of the few of us who were handling the affairs of the new-born company.

"Our equipment was very simple—nowadays it would be called primitive. Our policy was just as simple, but far more important. For a good policy endures, while equipment wears out.

"That policy was—and still is—to offer honest values, honestly described, to market distinctive and better products, to constantly work towards their improvement, to sell them at fair prices, and to render efficient service. That policy developed AMOCO-GAS, the original special motor fuel. It created AMOCO Motor Oil—Orange AMERICAN GAS—and the long line of other quality petroleum products we sell.

"In line with this policy we recently improved AMOCO-GAS. And very soon now—we'll announce an improvement in another of our products.

"Twenty-five years have passed, and 25 years is a pretty good age in a business as young as the petroleum business. This company has grown to be a major factor in the industry. We have large refineries, and an extensive marketing system from Maine to Florida and inland. But what we value most of all is our splendid organization and the fine public good-will toward us.

"We sincerely thank all of our associates, dealers, other customers and friends whose support and approval have made this 25th Anniversary possible."

6 Persons Are Dead Due to Drowning

Syracuse, N. Y., July 16 (AP).—Six persons, including four small boys, are dead today as the result of two drowning accidents.

Three of the victims drowned near the summer home of Dr. L. H. Beckland, famous inventor, at Utawanna Lake, 30 miles north of Old Forge. They were identified as Mrs. Lillian Prentiss Schwartz, Joseph Middlebrook, 7, and a guide named Richard Van Ree.

It was impossible to get complete details of the accident from the isolated sector, but it was reported the man and woman lost their lives as they attempted to save the boy. He was said to have toppled from the boat as he attempted to retrieve a balloon which had blown away.

The bodies of three brothers, Kenneth Meeker, 13, Clifford, 11, and Leroy, 10, were recovered from Cayuga Lake near Ithaca, late yesterday.

The boys left the Meeker home Sunday to build a cabin. When they did not return the father started a search. He found the boys' shoes on the shore of the lake. Railroad section men told of seeing three boys playing on a raft.

Clarence Alfreds and Walter Wheeler, neighbors of the Meekers, found the body of Clifford and swam out into the lake to recover it.

The bodies of the other two were found nearby by grapples.

Tells How Banks Aided Progress

Economist Describes the Ways Banking Institutions Have Contributed to Development of United States

OMAHA, Neb., July 16 (AP).—Privately owned banking, despite its faults has served America well, William A. Irwin, Professor of Economics, Washburn College, Topeka, Kansas, declared in a recent address here on "Banking in a Changing World."

"Under the leadership of individuals banking has helped to bring this country to a foremost place in economic development among the nations of the world," he said. "The small community has been developed by the individual bank. The frontiers of America have been pushed forward by the help and counsel of the individual banker. The shocks of wars and depressions in a century and a half have been withstood with the assistance of the individual banker."

Change May Be Necessary

"It may be that we have reached a tide in the affairs of America when new methods are needed. It may be that we have come to a point where the individual should be submerged for the greatest good of the greatest number."

"It may even be that complete centralization of the banking system has become an economic necessity in our complicated social life. But the banker ought to be satisfied that these things are so before he should give up his fight for the system we have known. We came to greatness under that kind of banking; we should not give it up without unmistakable proof of the absolute necessity of such a change."

The American Pattern

Professor Irwin said that the proposal which has been advanced for coordinating banking operations in the national interest under "a Supreme Court" for banking is typically American and ought to have the most serious consideration of those elements which are clamoring for political control, which is typically un-American.

It is not wise, he said, to oppose changes as such, but that bankers should "see to it that change, if and when it does come, shall preserve all that is good in the past and stick as closely as possible to the American pattern of things."

Banking is properly a conservative profession, he pointed out, and should cling to practices and principles of banking that are, and always have been, fundamentally sound.

"It is to its credit that so large a group of its members never faltered, even in boom times, in their allegiance to those sound principles," he declared. "We probably owe our salvation from chaos to that fact."

Banks and College Launch New School

Aims to Offer Studies in Advanced Banking Subjects to Bank Executives—Public Duties of Banks Stressed

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — The Graduate School of Banking, an unprecedented educational project, operated under the joint auspices of the American Institute of Banking Section of the American Bankers Association and Rutgers University, with 220 enrolled students from 35 states and the District of Columbia, inaugurated here in June its first resident session.

The states represented and the number of registrants from each were as follows: Alabama, 2; Arkansas, 2; California, 2; Connecticut, 9; Delaware, 2; District of Columbia, 6; Florida, 2; Georgia, 3; Idaho, 1; Illinois, 3; Indiana, 2; Iowa, 1; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 2; Louisiana, 3; Maryland, 1; Massachusetts, 9; Michigan, 5; Minnesota, 1; Missouri, 5; Nebraska, 1; New Jersey, 31; New York, 50; North Carolina, 3; North Dakota, 1; Ohio, 7; Oklahoma, 1; Oregon, 2; Pennsylvania, 32; Rhode Island, 1; Texas, 5; Virginia, 6; Washington, 1; West Virginia, 1; Wisconsin, 4; Wyoming, 1.

The annual resident sessions of the graduate school will be supplemented between periods by continued extension work for the students at their homes. The purpose of the school is described as being to offer in a three year course a comprehensive approach to an advanced study of the various administrative problems in banking and trust institutions. The teaching procedure is a combination of the case system and the lecture discussion method.

The Curriculum

The curriculum embraces banking administrative problems and policies bank investment problems, legal and managerial aspects of trust business legal phases of bank administration and economic problems in the field of money and credit. The public relations and responsibilities of banks and methods for meeting these obligations are emphasized in the courses.

It is planned to set up similar schools in cooperation with other universities in various parts of the country. The school will add 200 registrants each year for two years until 600 are enrolled.

The trustees of the Educational Foundation of the American Bankers Association have set aside funds from the foundation to grant 100 loan scholarships of $150 each to qualified applicants for attendance at the school.

Sees Inflation a Slow Process

A Real Danger for the Future, Col. Ayres Tells Banking Groups.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—Present prospects do not indicate that inflation is severe enough to cause further dollar devaluation will come soon in this country, but as an ultimate development it seems to be a very real danger, Leonard F. Ayres, Vice President Cleveland Trust Company, said here tonight in an address before the Graduate School of Banking. He believed this statement to be true "unless the government enters frankly upon a policy of issuing fiat money with which to meet its expenses." At present that does not seem to be in sight, he said.

The Graduate School is operated jointly by the American Institute of Banking Section of the American Bankers Association and Rutgers University to offer advanced studies for bank officers.

"We have so enormously increased the capacity of our banking system for credit expansion that it is difficult to see how we could have a vigorous business revival without having it develop into a credit inflation," Colonel Ayres declared.

Inflation a Slow Process

If inflation does come it will be a slow process, he said, pointing out that in Germany, France, Belgium and Italy it took about five years to develop from the time when the governments entered upon policies of financing large peace-time deficits by bank credit up to the time when the public generally began to spend money rapidly because of fear that it would still further depreciate in purchasing power.

"If we are to go through such a period here it would seem likely that it might last rather longer than the corresponding periods did abroad," he said. "The beginning would date from the spring of 1933 when we left the gold standard for our money and entered upon the policy of financing large governmental deficits by the sale of Federal securities mainly to banks rather than to private investors."

"The method that we are following in the one that proved disastrous in Europe for in all those countries in which money that caused the inflation was not more strictly pressed home by government bonds and notes discounted at the banks. Nevertheless, the process is inherently a slow one."

Among the clearest lessons taught by the European experience, Colonel Ayres asserted, is that there are "no good reasons against inflation." He added:

Did Not Lighten Debt Burden

"One of the strange facts about these nations is that while they destroyed the values of most existing debts, they did not succeed in lightening the debt burden of either the people as a whole, or of the corporations."

"Inflation destroys the value of bonds and mortgages and so confiscates the property of these holders of obligations and hands it over to the shareholders and the equity owners. However, it introduces so many new economic difficulties that these shareholders and equity holders are at once forced to incur new indebtedness so that when stabilization comes the problems of debt are about as troublesome as they were before, or even more so."

The five requisites of inflation were listed by Colonel Ayres as first, a period of sustained active business; second, a rising stock market; third, real credit expansion; fourth, greater outflow of gold "than we can tolerate which would force us to cut our currency entirely free from gold"; and fifth, continued large budget deficits in government operation.

A PROPHECY

Significant economic developments to be expected in the next decade are listed by a prominent business writer as follows: (1) Higher standards of living. (2) Continued advances in technical processes of production. (3) Factory built houses, better and cheaper than hand made houses. (4) Somewhat cheaper money. (5) Faster travel. (6) News printed by radio. (7) Mechanical cotton picker, revolutionizing the South. (8) Cheaper electric power. (9) Better distribution of goods; more chain stores. (10) Another depression five or six years hence, preceded by an inflationary boom.

TWO QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Why is it that one farmer raises 100 bushels of corn to the acre, and the other one, on the other side of the fence, raises 25 bushels to the acre? Why is it that one farmer produces 100 pounds of pork on five bushels of corn, and another uses 25 bushels? Not until power machinery, scientific principles of soil-fertilization and restoration, rotation of crops, diversification of crops and economical feeding are applied to the farm, will the farmer's problem be solved, says a farm authority.

BANKING READY

NEW YORK. — There is abundant evidence that banks are in an unusually favorable position to finance a period of industrial growth, says the June issue of "Banking" published by the American Bankers Association.

An official survey on June 10 indicated that the Government of the United States, through its loans, was the potential owner of more than half of the existing world stocks of American cotton.

Friends of Two Dead Persons to Hear the Official Death Verdict

Tivoli, Italy, July 16 (AP).—Friends of Mrs. May Katherine Thompson, 40, of Brooklyn, and H. N. Scott, English manager of the American Express Company in Italy, came to this mountain resort today to hear an official verdict in the strange deaths of the couple.

Mrs. Thompson and Scott died Sunday in a cabin of the fashionable sulphur baths. A doctor treated them for asphyxiation from sulphur fumes in a futile attempt to revive them, but police ordered an autopsy when glasses containing red liquor were found in the room.

Attendants said the liquor was ordinary Italian wine, but the local authorities insisted on the autopsy. The procurator for the king and a physician viewed the bodies today, after which the physician removed the organs for chemical analysis. The results of the analysis will not be known for several days.

The procurator said the authorities entertained no particular decision concerning the cause of death. The fact that both died at the same time actuated the post mortem examination to establish the cause definitely. The bodies are in a Rome morgue.

A chemical test was made of the liquid found in the cabin and of the contents of the victims' stomachs.

Authorities said it was difficult to accept a verdict of death from sulphur fumes because of the position of the bodies.

Mrs. Thompson, in a bathing suit, was lying in a tub through which the water flowed. Scott, also in a bathing suit, sat in a chair at the other end of the cabin, into which sulphur water comes fresh from a spring.

Officials said it was possible for

Mrs. Thompson to have died from the fumes because she disregarded a warning posted in the cabin not to enter the tub before the water reached the top and before all dangerous vapors that might have concentrated in the tub were released.

They expressed doubt, however, that Scott could have died from the fumes as he was some distance from the tub.

One possible explanation offered by medical examiners was that the couple had drunk more wine than they realized and that their condition increased the effect of the sulphur vapors.

Mrs. Thompson, an art teacher whose husband is Edwin F. Thompson of Brooklyn, arrived in Rome on a tour a little more than a week ago. The American consulate was notified of her death.

Relatives of Mrs. Thompson notified the United States consulate at Rome to arrange to have her body sent home on the first available liner. The next sailing is probably that of the Rex, scheduled to leave July 26.

FREEMAN WANT ADS BRING RESULTS!

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, July 16 (AP)—The stock market was two-minded today, scattered specialties again attracting buyers while many of the so-called leaders backed water in the face of moderate profit taking.

The list started out with a steady to firm undertone, but the resistance levels which have been present for several days apparently could not be easily surmounted. A slow backing and filling movement resulted. The rails, steels and equipments lost their enthusiasm of Monday and did virtually nothing. There were a few soft spots in evidence.

Shares that managed to keep even or fractionally ahead of the procession included National Biscuit, Mack Truck, Collins & Aikman, Cerro de Pasco, Kennecott, Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, General Electric, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck and Standard Oil of California.

Among losers of fractions to a point or so were du Pont, U. S. Steel, Case, Chrysler, General Motors, Macy, National Distillers, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Western Union, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Westinghouse.

Kingston's Water Problem Expected To Be Cleared Up Soon

Kingston's water problem should be cleared up this week according to reports from the board of water supply today.

The break in the 24 inch pipe at Shady is repaired and only cleanup work remains before the job on this leak is completed.

Workmen are busy on the pipeline in Sawkill that was cracked open by heavy boulders and are making rapid progress. It is presumed that this job will soon be finished.

Until the water board makes notification of completion on its project of repairing the pipeline, residents of Kingston are asked to continue their conservation of water. The board has forbidden the use of water for sprinkling and other purposes not necessary in the daily course of life.

As soon as the Sawkill break is repaired, the water will be turned on to test the line. Other breaks may show up then. If they do it will mean another tieup while work is being done.

Superintendent Henry W. Darrow today continued to praise the ERB workers under his charge for their diligent efforts to complete the pipeline repairs so that Kingstonians may have unlimited use of water as soon as possible.

Trapped by Trifles

While the police were investigating an empty house in Newcastle, they disturbed a mouse which dashed to its hole; in doing so it scattered some plaster and revealed a hidden board which led to the street of a gang of snuff-and-crab robbers.

Once suspect, having committed a murder in Pennsylvania, made his way to Blackpool, but he could not explain away particles of red earth that he had brought to him from his shoes. Once a great snuff established the fact that a murderer had some connection with a snuff robbery, and this connected a chain of facts which led to his arrest and sentence.

On another occasion a snuff man was in a snuff pocket and tracked particles of snuff dust, which stuck to his clothes and enabled the police to prove that he had been in a certain spot.—The Bits Magazine.

On The Radio Day By Day
 Time is Eastern Daylight.
 New York, July 16 (AP)—Activities in the Bureau of Investigation, of which J. Edgar Hoover is director, will come as a broadcast from the Department of Justice via WJZ-NBC on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Hoover will not participate in the 30-minute transmission, but John B. Keeney and George Hicks of NBC will be there to describe the headquarters of the "G-Men," including a big share of the crime-detecting equipment.
 All the contracts have been signed to bring the March of Time back to the CBS air, but under a new setup. Instead of a 30-minute weekly review, the March will come on 15 minutes a day, five times a week, to dramatize what has taken place within 24 hours.
 Major Edward Bowes, who now is concentrating on the conduct of amateur broadcasting, will turn his next Sunday night WEAB-NBC hour into a celebration. It will mark his tenth anniversary as a broadcaster, and his plans provide for an appropriate observance of the occasion.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

BY ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Lula Rainer, a diminutive Viennese, is due to be Hollywood's next "sensation" or many people who claim to know such things will be dumbfounded.
 But Lula Rainer, an individual and an artist, does not speak Hollywood's language. She is less proficient in the tongue than in English, which she learned quickly on arrival to make her first picture, "Masquerade." So there is cause for much doubt that she will react to the rewards of stardom as Hollywood expects its puppets to react.

With Gestures
 Get the picture: a slim little girl in slacks, short black hair tousled, an engaging smile, a face slightly freckled, and beautiful only because of the expressive brown eyes. She struggles with her English, and speaks more fluently with the aid of gestures, her eyes, her head, her hands.

She had not seen her first picture yet, she said. It would not make her happy if other people liked it and she herself did not. What frightened her about pictures was that so many hands had a part in them. On the stage an artist gives what he has to give to his audience. In the films they can change everything in the cutting room, your work is no longer your own but the work of so many people. How can you know that all of them will give what you tried to give?

She does not like interviews. They make her feel as silly as if it was of importance. Stars are not important, only what they do as a part of their work is important. Artists need quiet in which to grow. It seems Hollywood does not like to give them this quiet. Stardom is bad because Hollywood makes too much of it, there is too much "bowing down" before stars. Stardom is a weight pressing down over the head—and one must grow upward or not at all.

Is Writing Book

She lives in a house at the beach where she has a garden and quiet. She is writing a book, and planning a ballet. She wants to stay in pictures only three years, and to be on the stage part of those years, to travel and see more of the world. If she herself becomes a star and William Powell, the star of "Masquerade," insisted that her name get equal billing she will not give up her "quiet." She will continue to live in a private world apart as much as possible, because only in such a life can an artist draw upon his inner self to contribute anything to art. She will not—emphatically—lend her name to the advertising of soap or cigarettes, for what have these commodities to do with art?

All of which sounds very serious and "arty," but as she propounds it with enthusiasm and humor, it is neither.

He Can Eat Now

Jimmy Neilson, "upside down" stomach youth who was cured by an operation in Massachusetts, can eat anything he wishes now. To prove it he demonstrates ably with an ice cream stick at his Oakland, Calif., home. (Associated Press Photo)

At The Theatres

Today
 Broadway: "Public Hero No. 1." This is another of the series glorifying the G-men of the U. S. Department of Justice and is a really great picture. Chester Morris as the G. Man is splendid. Joseph Calleia is perfect in the role of the gang leader, who the G-men are after, and Lionel Barrymore, as the continuously intoxicated doctor, of the gang is excellent. With a capable supporting cast of Paul Kelly, Lewis Stone, Jean Arthur and others seemingly greatly interested in making a good picture. Exciting entertainment.

Orpheum: "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back." That handsome adventurer Bulldog Drummond runs into all manner of excitement and mystery in a London fog and before festivities are completed, Mr. Drummond finds himself in love and danger. For lovers of melodrama, this show has the action, thrills and enjoyment so essential to good entertainment. Ronald Colman heads the cast and is ably supported by Loretta Young and Warner Oland.

Kingston: "The Nitwits." Wheeler and Woolsey this time use a murder and the writing profession with a little "footy" inventing to manufacture their gisling getting antics. The Nitwits, an excellent name for this pair of crazy laugh getters, are a song writing team who in their spare time invent an electrical device to make a person tell the truth. Their invention is used to solve a murder mystery and help Wheeler, the lover of the two crazy ones, to win the girl of his choice. Great comedy for those who like their laughs in bunches.

Tomorrow
 Broadway: "Vagabond Lady." Out of the current comedy crop, this talkie rises over all and becomes a standout picture, filled with gaiety, laughter and fun. And Robert Young finds himself after a series of trials to score an amazing triumph as the scapegrace member of a dignified family. This family, so filled with dignity and formality that it practically squeaks when in action, gets a rude shock when Robert Young gets into action. Most of the fun occurs when an older brother asks Robert to show his fiancée the finer things of life. Robert obliges with the zeal of a sephyr. Due to the fine direction of Sam Taylor, the show is lacking in a single dull moment and Reginald Denny, Evelyn Venable, and Frank Craven are seen to advantage in important assignments. Good hot weather entertainment.

 Orpheum: "Menace" and "The Awakening of Jim Burke." Gertrude Michael, Paul Cavanaugh and Berton Churchill are the principals in the first production, a mystery drama that starts slowly, picks up speed as it trudges along, and breaks into some fancy sprinting toward the close. "The Awakening of Jim Burke" is a human interest talkie about a father who does not understand his son. The boy is interested in music while the father is interested in fist fights and being a tough guy. Misfortune brings them together and all is happiness at the play's conclusion. Jack Holt, Florence Rice and Katherine Burke head the cast.

Kingston: "Casino Murder Case" and "Ladies Love Danger." Philo Vance, the acme of detectives, moves with suave grace through the mystery and death of the opening feature at the Kingston. And S. S. VanDine's action hero has a tough as-ignment in this picture, for all the luck seems to go against him, and he finds it pretty difficult to tack the blame on any one person. But by cautious deduction he manages to uncover the murderer without so much as mussing his hair. Paul Lukas makes an engaging Philo Vance and a fine supporting group includes Allison Skipworth, Rosalind Russell, Hardie Albright, Ted Healy, Donald Cook and Isabel Jewell. "Ladies Love Danger" is an above average murder mystery with a lot of comedy thrown in to even things up. Mona Barrie and Gilbert Roland head the cast.

The Egyptian scarab is an image of the sacred dung-beetle, which was venerated as a type of the sun-god.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEET the WIFE

MRS. FLOYD B. OLSON

Dowagers may have their big society functions with celebrities attending, but Mrs. Floyd B. Olson, if the choice be hers, will take small informal parties with personal friends. As wife of Minnesota's governor, she has entree to the big affairs of the state, but she really would prefer a bridge game or golf match with friends, or even an apron and her kitchen where she prepares spiced roast beef to tickle the governor's palate. "We have happy times," she says. "You see, I am of Czechoslovakian descent, my daughter, Patricia, has an Irish name, the governor is part Norwegian and part Swedish and speaks Jewish fluently. That's quite a combination, don't you think?" Golf is her favorite hobby. . . . flower gardening runs a close second. . . . On days the sun beams down she isn't playing golf or working for the welfare of children. . . . In which she is intensely interested.

TIRED and IRRITABLE

WHO wouldn't be cross when you're tired and irritable? You're dragging her down! Relieve the pain and discomfort by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. All druggists sell them.

Sister of Chicago says: "I was very tired and irritable. I had severe pains and terrible headaches periodically. My husband brought me your Tablets and they helped me wonderfully."

Why don't you try them next month?

BARBARA BELL FASHION PATTERNS

Pattern Nos. 1651-B and 1621-B

No. 1651-B—Afternoon Dress for the Older Woman. Summer afternoon dresses are sheer and designed to flatter the figure by means of graceful lines, and feminine details. Capes appear very often to soften the silhouette, and skirts flare prettily. The waistline should be closely fitted, and for the woman of mature figure, the skirt fullness should start at the lower part of the hip line.

This dress observes all the rules laid down for the woman who no longer affects the extravagance of youth. Darts do what is necessary to the waist-line, and the panels, in the front and back, provide long, unbroken lines.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1651-B is designed in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, and 52. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 36-inch material; 1/2 yard for tie-backs; and 1/2 yard for lining.

This pattern may be procured for 15 cents.

No. 1621-B—Informal Frock for Summer Evenings. No woman who has possessed a summer evening dress of cotton would ever be without one, they so perfectly conform to the informal spirit of the season.

The yoke and deep skirt flounce of this dress have the same pointed lines. Ruffles form perky little sleeves at the dropped shoulder seams, and bows trim the blouse and belt. This is a dress for youth, and gaiety, and no thoughts of the morrow.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1621-B is designed in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40. Size 16 (34) requires 4 1/2 yards of 36-inch material; 2 1/2 yards of ribbon for bow and belt.

This pattern may be procured for 15 cents.

Tomorrow: Overalls with a blouse to make the costume complete.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

For balmy summer nights on the terrace or dancing where the starry sky is the roof—"Wisp," a wisp of chiffon in its gracefully clinging way makes the ideal gown.

These capes that can be worn as hoods—and hoods that can be worn as capes, to suit midday's fancy are quite the rage, even in the very sheer fabrics. When one walks out into the moonlit garden or drives home in the wee small hours—this hood affair offers just enough protection for the coiffure—not to mention the alluring effect and charming picture it creates.

Patou designed the original of the model sketched above. It is done in flowered chiffon—the dress gracefully following the figure down to the set-in godets at back, leaving the front alluringly straight. Soft revers modestly cover the shoulders and form the low back décolletage which is terminated with a row of self covered buttons.

The draped cape in sari effect uses shirring to form the hood, which can be worn over the head—or not, as desired. The old world influence is greatly stressed in the latest fashions with the draped capes, draped skirts and the huge draped berets so recently launched.

Gray Linen—Red Accents

LAURA L. BALDT, A. M.

Isn't this a snappy little washing ensemble? And you can wear it for sports or to town. You'll also find endless use for both the dress and the cape worn separately. Over sheer cotton prints or tub silk prints, the cape will look very smart.

Plaided linen, checked seersucker, pique, tub silks, etc., are also suitable for this easily made model.

Style No. 3238 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39-inch material for dress with 2 yards of 39-inch material for cape.

Better Homes" Exhibit Awards

Here is something of interest to boys of this city who are interested and experienced somewhat in making things with their hands.

To the youth not over 18 years of age, producing the best miniature houses, and exhibiting the same at the Flower, Fruit and Food Show on the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs on September 11, at the Municipal Auditorium, the Building and Loan Association of Kingston offers the following awards:

First prize, $15.
Second prize, $10.
Third prize, $5.

The conditions are as follows: The house must be constructed of durable and strong material, wood or building board. It must be painted and correctly finished as a real home should be when complete. When complete, the house must not be over one and a half by one and three-fourths feet. If it has porches or other extensions they must come within these measurements.

The house may be of any design, a log cabin it will be accepted if not painted.

The exhibitor must build his own house. Each youth exhibiting must first register and obtain a set of rules from Mrs. Fred P. Luther, 50 Downs street, in order that there may be no misunderstandings.

A further award of $10 is offered to the boys under 14 years of age, producing exhibit houses.

The Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs makes awards as follows:

To the boy under 14 years of age producing the best houses:
First prize, $5.
Second prize, $3.
Third prize, $2.

The same rules will apply to the boys of 14 years or younger as to the older boys. Boys of 14 years or younger may compete in the older class, but the older boys may not compete in the younger class.

In both classes the houses are to be retained by the Building and Loan Association for exhibition purposes for a period of two weeks after the show and then they will be returned to their builders, the winners in each class.

Exhibitors are to enter their exhibits with Mrs. F. P. Luther at least one week before the date of the Flower Show, September 11, in order that space may be planned for and arrangements made for wiring the houses.

Each exhibitor must be present in person on the evening of September 11, or forfeit his rights to the award.

Mrs. Luther especially urges each exhibitor to enter the contest to see the rules and regulations before starting building his house and to make the entry not later than September 4.

Searching for Bars
Oslo, Norway, July 15 (AP)—Police worked today on a report that Midshipman Charles Kenneth Barr, who disappeared from the United States battleship Wyoming, was anxious to inspect Norwegian country life at close hand. Authorities said there was a report he left a taxicab 12 miles from here after confiding such a desire to the driver. Police said they were uncertain whether he met an accident or disappeared voluntarily.

Laval Tackles Problems
Paris, July 16 (AP)—Premier Pierre Laval tackled the problems of France's depression and its 11,000,000,000-franc deficit today, submitting 23 economic decrees to the cabinet in an effort to bolster the franc. The Premier faced the first big test of his strength by using the virtual dictatorial powers granted to him by parliament. The only alternative, he said, would be to "fabricate false money."

Lion and Python Give Trainers Busy Day

Amityville, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—Two untamed creatures of the jungle—a python and a lion—bowed to man today, but not until they had laid low two of their captors.

The victims were trainers at the wild animal camp of Frank Buck, noted explorer.

The python attacked Otis Lloyd yesterday as it was being taken from a cage in which it had been brought from the Malay jungle. It coiled its 25-foot body around Lloyd as fellow handlers fought to free him.

In the midst of the struggle, a large male lion broke from its handlers as they were transferring it to a permanent cage. The animal lunged at Stuart Roe, slashing his arms and shoulders before it was subdued.

It took five minutes for four handlers to pry the python away from Lloyd and place the snake in its permanent cage.

Lloyd, an experienced snake handler, remained calm as he lay in the grip of the snake. He was able to give directions to his rescuers.

The two men were taken to Reed Hospital where attendants said Lloyd was critically injured.

Boy Scout Summer Camp Activities

The first week of the Boy Scout summer camp closed Sunday and the second week of the first period began with an increased registration over the opening week and considerable improvement in the weather. Although the first week was featured by a great deal of wet weather the campers all knew that this could not be controlled and proceeded to make the program of the camp one of the finest and the most enthusiastic. Each village group did its share. The Pioneer village have been busy building bridges over some of the streams. The Ranger Village have developed a new council ring and camp fire circle. The Indians are building a totem pole for their Indian village. A group of campers under the direction of Frank Brantley, Nature Instructor, has completed a nature trail which will be of interest to all and particularly the newer campers of lower rank Scouts. During the week the inter-village camp fires have been most enthusiastic and each village tried to outdo the others in program and activities. In the athletics volley ball seems to be the leader to date and there is quite a bit of rivalry between the various villages, and the week-end found the Pioneers the winner. They were promptly challenged by the camp staff and defeated to the joy of all the other village groups. The Pioneers are now laying plans to defeat the camp staff, and if they should win next week, will win the championship.

Over the week-end was the Father and Son camp and although there were not many fathers and sons who took advantage of it those that were present enjoyed it immensely and agreed it should become an annual affair.

Saturday night was weekly stunt night and every group was prepared in full to contribute their part toward the evening's fun.

During the first week John Robinson, Red Cross examiner and instructor, qualified the following for beginners pins: Robert VanVoorhis and Ralph Hayes of Saugerties and Joe Haeflin of Windham. The following qualified and were awarded swimmers badges:

Intz. VanVoorhis of Saugerties, Robert Wiltse, Jerome Hartman and Arthur Kay of Catskill, Robert Wilkie and John Wilkie of Milton, Harold Kestor of Lake Katrine, Donald Wiseman of New Paltz, Manfro Goffredi, Kenneth Hughes, Jack Short, William McManus, Richard Whalen, Eric Fueget, John Gotelli, John Larkin, Donald Mathers of Kingston.

Sunday was the weekly visitors day and during the afternoon and evening a steady stream of parents and friends visited camp, looking over the equipment and watching the program operated during the day.

This week which is the closing week of the first period finds a week of many activities. Plans are made for the first of a series of mountain hikes to take place Thursday. The more experienced campers will leave after breakfast in a truck which will take them to the foot of Black Head Mountain, and during the day they will climb the mountain, spending Thursday night on the summit and returning Friday night to camp in time for dinner. Several over-night hikes and trips are planned so that every boy who desires to take part in this activity may do so.

The first Camp Court of Honor will take place Friday night of this week when many awards will be made.

FLATBUSH

Flatbush, July 16—There will be no services in the Flatbush Reformed Church for the next two Sundays, July 21 and 28, as the Rev. S. W. Ryder and family will be away on vacation. The Sunday School will be closed also. All services will be resumed on August 4.

The July committee of the Ladies' Aid Society will hold a food sale on the church lawn on Saturday afternoon and evening, July 20. In case of rain, the sale will be held in the church hall. The committee asks that everybody bear the date in mind and will appreciate any assistance that helps to make the sale a success.

The Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. V. Durling on July 12 for the monthly meeting. Mrs. A. Kukuk was the leader. The society is studying the book, "Japanese Women Speak." Those attending were Mrs. M. Klothe, Miss P. Cheshire, Mrs. J. Ketterson, Mrs. K. Davis, Mrs. A. Miller, Miss Maye Osterhout, Miss Mary Osterhout, Mrs. R. Ryder, Mrs. M. Ducker, Mrs. E. Back-Firing Plan Effective Forest fire fighters have found the best way to water there is nothing that will stop an advancing fire so quickly as back-firing. This means that huge piles of brush and woods refuse are built along the lines of the advancing flames and set on fire. There are kept under control by the fire fighters and after they have burned out they leave a wide strip of burned-over land that effectively checks any fire, for there is nothing left to burn.

The City of Victoria

The city of Victoria was founded as a fort by the Hudson's Bay company being first called Fort Alford, when Queen Victoria's royal consort, the name, however, being almost immediately changed to Victoria, in honor of the queen then reigning, in 1838. Prior to the erection of the Hudson's Bay fort, the Indians knew the present site of Victoria as Camosun or Camosack.

Dear Sir:

At the school meeting at Bearsville held July 13, 1935, a statement, comparing the grades of state scholarships in rural counties with those in populous urban counties, was challenged. The speaker was promptly told that he could not prove what he was saying. He replied that he would be pleased to furnish such proof and here it is:

You will note in the enclosed reports of state scholarships that the one for 1934 gives for Otsego county (the home of the person who challenged the statement) 93, 92, and 92 as the highest ratings, and for Kings county, 98, 98, and 98. Again for the year 1933, Otsego earned 96, 93 and 92, while Kings gained 98, 98 and 97.

Looking further back the 1927 report states that Otsego county has 93, 87, and 86. Kings earned in the same year 97, 97, and 95.

We are sending forward the reports as evidence of our good faith. You may check these figures and we urgently request that you return the reports.

If you care to publish this statement we shall appreciate your doing so. If you do, please send me a copy of the edition.

Very truly yours,
WAYNE G. BENEDICT,
Dist. Supt. Dist. One, Madison County, Hamilton, N. Y.

Three Cars and Truck Involved in Accident

An accident at West Park Sunday evening about 9 o'clock sent two people to the Benedictine Hospital and tied up traffic opposite the Johnson gas station for a time. Three cars were involved in the crash which happened when a car traveling north turned out into the roadway to endeavor to pass a large truck which was pulling out from the gas station.

Two cars coming south, apparently passing other cars in the middle strip of concrete, and the car coming north collided. Mrs. John A. Bynes, 48, of 173 Green street, was the most seriously injured and is at the Benedictine Hospital with a fractured leg and body lacerations. She is under the care of Dr. Sibley. J. E. Schacht of Brooklyn, who was operating one of the cars involved, was brought to the hospital and treated but discharged. He suffered body injuries. All of the injured were brought to the Benedictine in the W. N. Conner ambulance.

Three cars and a truck were involved in the accident. A large truck of The Relsch Trucking Company of Painesville, N. J., driven by John Flachkella of West New York, N. J., pulled out from the C. W. Johnson gas station at West Park after taking on fuel. It was headed north. The Plymouth coupe of Mr. Bynes was coming north and swung out to avoid the truck. At the time headed south in the center lane was a Ford coach operated by Mr. Schacht which was attempting to pass a coupe operated by Eric J. Pedersen of 35 Battery avenue, Brooklyn. In the Pedersen car was Herbert Rustadt, Mrs. Zelmmer Heimbach and Dorothy Meyer, all of Brooklyn. Two had been riding in the rumble seat and all escaped injury except for minor scratches and bruises. With Schacht was a Mr. Nugent who escaped serious injury.

When the Schacht car and the Bynes car came together the Schacht car turned around and was struck the second time by the Pedersen car. It then turned over throwing the driver and occupant out. Both the Schacht and Pedersen cars were thrown clear of the pavement while the Bynes car remained on the pavement and had to be towed away later. None of the cars struck the truck.

Both the Schacht and Pedersen cars were on the Gilbert Ackert lawn after the accident and while both had been going south at the time of impact they faced each other when they finally came to rest. All of the cars involved were badly wrecked.

Sergeant Lockhart and Trooper Lynn Baker were notified and went to the scene where an investigation was conducted and traffic regulated until the roadway was clear.

Third Annual Opens At Woodstock Gallery And Portraits Rule

Woodstock, July 16.—The Third Annual exhibition of the Woodstock Artist Association opened Saturday, July 13, at the association's gallery, to continue through August 7. This exhibition is devoted principally to work of the directors of the association. However, a number of other artists are represented in the present show.

There are more portraits than are usually seen in the gallery shows, many of them very good. One of these is "The Sunday Bonnet," a pastel by Peggy Dodds, a gay faced little girl, looking brightly, and with a glint of mischief in her demure face, from a contrasting somber background. Doris Lee's "Woman Sewing" shows an interesting portrait of an eager concentrated face. "Nina" by Emil Ganso is an attractive portrait of a little girl, with the flesh coloring that is characteristic of Ganso's work. Eugene Ludin's "Family Portrait" is an unmistakable likeness of the artist himself, Hannah Small, and lying domesticated at their feet, their dog. "Low Tide" by Harry Gottlieb shows a group of rugged sailors gathered at the water's edge. Russell Lee's "Girl Writing a Letter" and Eugene Specker's "Head" are also good.

Of the landscapes several are worthy of special attention. Henry Mattson's "Moonlight" is one of the best though he has had better work in previous hangings. "Red Fields of Virginia," by Henry Lee McFee is a colorful and decorative scene. "New England Port" by Andree Ruellan is a delicately colored, clear and detailed scene. "Ponchockie Steeples" by Charles Rosen is an interesting group of buildings, with the graceful steeples rising above them. Austin Mecklem's "Power Shovel" is quite appropriate during the present highway construction though it was painted long before the work here. "Landscape Time" by Judson Smith is noticeable for its background of trees rather than the croquet players in the foreground. The scene is Mr. Smith's own lawn. The longer the onlooker studies "The Wave" by Neil Ives the more it develops an appearance of power and reality, until it seems about to break at one's very feet. "Gravel Pits" by Ed Dreis has also been on exhibit in the Sawkill gallery.

A still life, "Table," by Rosella Hartman, is outstanding for its simplicity and humbleness of subject so realistically illustrated. It is composed of several familiar objects, books, pears, onions, a laurel twig and a cup and saucer. Jo Cantline's "After Xmas" is a gay group of Christmas tree trimmings lying together real and glittering in their memories of past glory.

Two manual arts panels, painted for the Kingston High School by Arnold Blanch symbolize in decorative design and brilliant color several manual arts. The "Fresco Segment," by Wendell Jones, adds an original and unique touch to the usual oil paintings hung in the gallery.

Of the sculpture there are two familiar portraits, one in plaster of "Emil Ganso," in the American Artist Series by Eugene Gershoy, which brings a smile of recognition and delight to the onlooker; the other, "Beatrice," by Alfeo Faggi, a graceful portrait in bronze of Mrs. Faggi.

Governor Seeks Way To End Flood Ravages, Asks U. S. Assistance

Albany, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman appealed today for the assistance of army engineers to plan some system to prevent a recurrence of floods such as swept upstate New York last week claiming 43 lives and causing property damage estimated at $25,000,000.

The Governor himself did not reveal his action, but it was learned in reliable sources close to him that he had telegraphed his request to Frank C. Walker, director of the National Emergency Council. The text of the telegram was not immediately available.

His request, it was reported, was for army engineers to be assigned immediately to the preparation of a New York flood control project.

The Governor acted just before going into a conference intended to swing the state's new rural rehabilitation corporation to the assistance of stricken farmers in the flood zone. This corporation was set up by the 1935 legislature to assist farmers through the use of millions of dollars of Federal money.

Mr. Lehman received reports of fresh flood damage caused by heavy rains last night, but this was of minor proportions compared to last week's disastrous flood.

Several homes were damaged, roads inundated and at least two families rescued from flooded houses in the Saratoga Springs-Glen Falls region last night.

A retaining wall along the Canisteo river at Addison, 12 miles south of Corning, broke Monday night and allowed the annex of the First National Bank to settle two feet. A heavy downpour swept through Corning late yesterday and some streets in Watkins Glen, in the heart of the flood zone, were again flooded.

The Public Pulse

Letters from readers will not be published in this column unless name and address is signed. The Freeman reserves the right to reject any letter considered in bad taste or offensive in nature. Letters should be brief.

Kingston, N. Y., July 15, 1935.
Editor of The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y.
Dear Sir:

The writer is taking this opportunity to ask your aid through the columns of your paper in eliminating several evils in the management of traffic in this city.

Several good plans have been started to regulate traffic but they are not carried out to the fullest. Stop signs are erected at corners of side streets and principal thoroughfares to avoid the chances of accidents occurring at these corners. But the trouble is, more than half of the drivers on reaching these corners cross right over or make turns without stopping.

Then, too, the No Parking edict is not carried out as it should be. Along John street uptown, for instance, the left side of the street is literally covered with signs reading "No parking on this side." Yet try to find any empty space.

The greatest and by far the most dangerous weakness in the regulation of traffic seems to be in the permitting of double parking. Why is this habit permitted to exist at all? Why should anyone who is properly parked along the curb have to wait until the driver of a double parked vehicle decides to return to remove his truck or car, or else go to the trouble of moving it himself? Double parking not only inconveniences a good number of drivers parked along the curb, but creates a hazard which should never exist. Suppose you were driving along Broadway for instance following another vehicle with no thought whatsoever of stopping in the middle of the block, and suddenly the driver of the vehicle ahead decides to park practically in the middle of the street? What chance have you to avoid a rear-end collision or perhaps being struck by a following car on turning out to pass the double parked? This habit not only presents this collision hazard but serves on the whole to gum up the free run of traffic, especially on Broadway after traffic has been held up by reason of a train crossing over Broadway. Instead of traffic moving freely to relieve the congestion due to this delay, it is held back by double parked vehicles all along the street.

This letter is not composed with the idea of criticising the management of traffic but merely as a suggestion to better and safer regulation. Let's hope it will bear fruit. A VICTIM OF DOUBLE PARKERS.

Kingston and Poughkeepsie Tie In Newburgh Track Meet, 24-24; Parks Takes Three First Places

Kingston's Alumni Track team, headed by Stuart Parks, former star of Springfield College, tied with Poughkeepsie A. C. yesterday afternoon at Newburgh in the Mid-summer Track Meet. Each team scored 24 points and overshadowed the favored Mercury A. C. of New York who took third place with 22 points.

Five meet records were broken, so keen was the competition. Stu Parks of Kingston set two new standards in the broad and high jump. A leap of 23 feet 3 1/2 inches in the broad jump beat the old record by close to four feet. Second and third places also eclipsed the old mark. In the high jump, Parks did 5 feet, 7 and did not try again as he had already won first place. In the 220 dash Briscoe of the Mercury A. C. broke his own record of 24 flat with a new time of 22 5/8. Parks did not compete in this event. The 440 went to Larkhart, also of the A. C., who broke his own record with a run of 53 7/8. His old time was 54 flat. McLaughlin of Poughkeepsie, Cornell track man, broke Klein's shotput mark with a heave of 46 feet, 10 1/2 inches. The old mark was 42 feet, 2 inches, made last year.

In the 100 yard dash Parks of Kingston romped home a winner by three feet. Roosa finished fourth and Welner was eliminated in one of the opening heats.

In the 220 yards race in fourth while Roosa was eliminated. Hart finished second in the 880 and Morehouse, who was headed for third place in the last 40 yards but was blocked out by another runner, came in fourth.

Goffredi of the locals took the pole vault with a jump of 11 feet, 2 inches after tying Mosky of Monticello at 11 feet.

Saxe of Kingston finished fourth in the high jump being eliminated at 6 feet, 3 inches. Saunders came in fourth in the broad jump with a leap of 19 feet, 3 inches. Marcus placed sixth in the shotput.

Mercury A. C. took the 880 relay, thereby gaining a second leg. Kingston finished third with a team composed of Roosa, Parks, Hart, and Saunders running in that order. Parks ran his 220 in last time gaining 40 yards on the local team.

Arrangements are being made by Manager Streeter and Nick Chumas of Newburgh to combine the Kingston and Newburgh high school alumni teams for a dual meet during the middle of August with either Albany or New York at Newburgh. The Kingston team will remain in training and will hold their first workout at the high school on Wednesday at 4:30. Men who announced they would stay in training are Parks, Welner, Roosa, Hart, Morehouse, Saunders, Goffredi, Charlton and Saxe. Newburgh will be led by Nick Chumas and Thompson.

Havana Cuban Stars Will Meet U. P. A. at Fair Grounds Friday

CATCHER FERNANDEZ

For the past 35 years, as regularly as the clock works, as soon as the first robin appears and as soon as the circus comes to town, a band of athletes known over the eastern seaboard as the Cuban Stars of Havana, make their appearance on baseball diamonds throughout the east.

Friday evening at 6.30 they will play at the Kingston Fair Grounds against the Kingston U. P. A. nine.

For this season the management of the visitors takes great pride in presenting one of the most talked of teams ever to set sail from the Pearl of the Antilles. The players have been collected from all over Central and South America, all Cubans who have made a name for themselves in other countries.

Jose M. Fernandez is captain of the outfit. He is the catcher and is known as the "iron man" of baseball, having caught in more ball games than any other catcher actively engaged in the business. Jose is one of the best hitters on the team and is noted for his fine catching and developing of young pitchers.

For mound duty the boys have been selected from far and wide. The head twirler is Silvino Ruiz, who is the possessor of a remarkable screw ball and a deceptive slow ball. For the past three seasons he played with the Concordia Club in Venezuela.

The lineup of the Cubans for Friday's game will also include: Vargas, lf.; Perez, 1b.; Vargas, cf.; Roque, rf.; Etcheverry, 2b.; Pere, 3b.; Abrey, ss.

U. S. Favored to Beat German Tennis Team

London, July 16 (AP)—The betting is two to one that United States will defeat Germany in the Davis Cup inter-zonal finals starting Saturday at Wimbledon.

Those are the odds one large British commission house is offering against Germany's chances. They are made in the face of the fact that in Baron Gottfried Von Cramm Germany has one of the greatest tennis players in the world.

The commissioners figure that although Von Cramm may take two of the singles matches, the young and sensational Heider Heider is not experienced enough to conquer the American slugging players.

They also believed the anticipated doubles victory of William Allen and Johnny Van Ryn over Von Cramm and K. Lund will give the United States the victory that will send it against England in the challenge round.

Allen, Van Ryn, Donald Budge and Sidney Wood, Jr., who made up the American team, worked out under a hot sun yesterday, refusing to rest their chances on coconuts.

Football Game

This evening at Forsyth Park the softball team of the American Mechanics will meet the team from the Board of Public Works. The batteries for the Mechanics will be Craig and Hughes, and for the B. P. W. Norton and Vogt. The game starts at 6:30.

STANDINGS

By ANDY CLARKE
Associated Press Sports Writer
The bush safari of the Cincinnati Reds has produced some mighty fine ivory.

Out of minor league clubs here and there the Reds have brought in baseball timber that has been fashioned into an aggressive, fighting ball club. Some of the other teams are wondering what is going to happen when these fledglings become thoroughly seasoned.

The Reds shook off the four-year jinx of Hal Schumacher yesterday and trimmed the league-leading New York Giants 13-6. It was the sixth straight victory for the Reds, breaking the 11-game winning streak of the Giants' ace right hander who was shelled from the box in the seventh.

On the team that wallowed the Giants were some names that would be unfamiliar to one who hasn't been watching his box scores closely. Most of these players were drafted during the winter.

There was Myers, the shortstop who came up from Columbus in the American Association, Goodman, the rightfielder who came from Rochester in the International; Campbell from Los Angeles on the Pacific Coast, and Billy Sullivan from St. Paul.

Goodman collected four hits, including a triple; Myers got two including a homer and Sullivan and Campbell got one each.
Schumacher had beaten the Reds 14 times and tied them once since May 19, 1932, before yesterday's uprising. The defeat cut the Giants' lead to five games over the rushing Cardinals, who turned back the buffeted Braves for their 11th successive victory.

The Chicago Cubs ran their victory string up to eight straight when they took a 10-inning encounter with the Phillies. Bill Herman's line double with two out sent Augie Galan home with the run that gave them a 2-1 verdict.

The Cards won by the lopsided score of 13-6 in the first of their four-game series. Dizzy Dean allowed 14 hits but his mates collected 18 safe blows to give the dizzy one his 15th triumph of the season.

In the only American league game the St. Louis Browns defeated the Washington Senators, 3-2, when Lyn Lary, whom Washington traded to St. Louis a few weeks ago, drove out a double that scored the deciding run.

BARMANNS BEAT MECHANICS AND RAPID ROSE, 12-4; 18-5

The Barmanns collected two more victories by defeating the Mechanics 12-4 and Rapid Rose 18-5, to run their string of victories to 25 out of 28 starts.

Ben Toffel twirled brilliantly in both games, while Geoghan lashed out 7 hits in the twin-bill. The Brewers continued their impressive play and remain undefeated at Barman's lot to date, all three defeats occurring at foreign diamonds.

Kansas City Glad To See Zwilling Managing Blues Again—Says So At Gate

the "spread-eagle Dutchman" has his blues up there, drawing crowds.

Kansas City (AP)—Edward Harrison (Dutch) Zwilling, the hard-bitten veteran who was recalled to the helm of the Kansas City Blues after a two-year absence, is well on his way to restoring this town's reputation of "best-drawing" minor league spot in the country.

Under his direction, the American Association club is attracting customers to Nechelsch field and last year's deficit is being wiped away. Crowds of 5,000 and 6,000 are not unusual.

The reason: the Blues are bouncing around in the first division for the first time in several seasons. Dutch's great fan following, sustained by his departure after the 1933 season, attributes much of this success to the colorful, gray-haired manager's strategy.

When Zwilling was replaced by Tim Speaker in 1933 after the Nechelsch interests lost control of the franchise here, the fans hadn't forgotten the "spread eagle" Dutchman who had reared the out-of-control Blues in the brighter days of 1931-32 and had come back as manager in 1937 to lead them to the American Association pennant and little world series triumph in 1939.

That year the Blues drew more than 25,000 customers one day, the largest crowd ever to witness an American league game.

But the new regime of 1933 called its hopes on Speaker, and Zwilling went to the Western league, where his St. Joseph team won the title. Speaker was soon replaced by Ed Allen, who finished out the '33 season with the Blues wallowing in the depths.

Johnny Kling, the old catcher of the Chicago Cubs—now turned brewer and capitalist—gained control of the Blues. Roger Peckinpaugh was brought in as manager. The Blues got nowhere, so they had called back old Dutch, who had been from St. Joseph to Sioux City.

Butch Van Buren Around
Zwilling had a colorful first career. He was famed for a spread-eagle catcher in the outfield all the way from Day City, Mo., where he began his professional career, through the American, Federal and National leagues, to the minors.

He was with the White Sox 1916; St. Joseph, 1917-18; Chicago Federal League club, 1918-19; Chicago Cubs, 1919; Indianapolis 1920-21; Kansas City, 1921-22; Lincoln, Neb., 1923; Kansas City, 1924-25; St. Joseph, 1926-27; St. Joseph, 1928-29; St. Joseph, 1930.

He was arrested 8 o'clock this morning in a Crane street, near Eastman Union, for begging, by Patrolman James E. Welch.

Marnock Family In Upstate Flood

Word has been received in this city from Edward J. Marnock, former assistant manager of the W. T. Grant Company store in this city, now manager of the Grant Co. store in Bath, N. Y., of the safety of his mother, Mrs. E. D. Marnock, and his sister, Miss Eleanor Marnock, and himself.

At the height of the flood conditions in Bath they were taken to Hammondsport which later was the flood center, when they were able to return to their home in Bath. Many of their household effects on the lower floor of their house were damaged or destroyed, but they were well at the time of sending the message, though like their neighbors very apprehensive of the danger of typhoid fever. The Grant store was seriously damaged. Mrs. and Miss Marnock, who spent the winter with Mrs. C. N. Reed two winters ago, have many friends in this city as has Mr. Marnock, who will be glad to hear of their safety.

Chain Letter Idea Aiding the Red Cross

Rochester, N. Y., July 16 (AP).—A chain letter is being used to raise funds here to aid flood sufferers in the southern tier area of New York state.

Among the contributions announced today at Red Cross headquarters was a letter enclosing a dime. The writer said he had sent out 200 copies of the letters, each reading: "Please mail a dime, or more to the American Red Cross and make four more copies of this letter and give or mail them to friends. You have no chance for any personal gain."

The local fund passed the $10,000 mark. The city's quota is $25,000.

'Can Customers Take It?' Is Query Raised By Sub-Strato Flight Plans

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.
(Associated Press Science Editor.)

New York (AP).—Four "stratosphere" planes—to fly above 30,000 feet, which is not strictly stratosphere but close to its lower edge—are planned secretly in three countries.

Two are American, one French and one German.

The engineering problems before planes fly the stratosphere are definite, their solutions theoretically known.

There is another problem, little discussed, the human one, or, as the aviation experts say, "the physiological limit." It was hoped the ascension of the ill-fated Explorer II would give a clue to this problem.

Supercharging Difficult

The biggest difficulty comes at present in climbing to stratosphere heights, or anywhere near. The horsepower falls off in climbing more rapidly than the density of the atmosphere. If there were no cure for that higher altitudes would be impossible.

The cure is supercharging. This is compression of rarefied air at high altitudes, so that the engine gets an air mixture equivalent to lower levels.

Here again a limit appears. This is the power needed to compress the air. That limit is definite if engine power is used.

But by using the exhaust to run the supercharger this limit is lifted. Some engineers believe that as real stratosphere altitudes are approached, steam power may come into use. The advantage is no need of spending energy in supercharging.

Human Problem Vital

Propeller designs will probably be changed with great altitudes. They will need considerably larger diameters of blades at 40,000 feet than at 4,000 feet.

In inside circles at present there is more discussion of the human problem than of the mechanical.

The engineers can build the stratosphere planes, of that there is little doubt.

But no one knows what effect the great altitudes will have on paying passengers, the persons who are not specially trained for flying, but without whom there can be no service.

Fifteen thousand feet is the limit at which oxygen drops too low for human comfort. Thirty thousand is the limit at which decreasing atmospheric pressure become uncomfortable.

An Unknown Factor

Engineers with certainty can design cabins for stratosphere planes in which oxygen and air pressure can be maintained at sea-level conditions. The pressure needed is only 14½ pounds a square inch. Steam boilers do immensely more with ease. Cabins shaped like boilers can sustain the atmospheric pressure with ease.

But here the unknown factor enters. Is sealable atmospheric pressure at 40,000 feet, in an enclosed cabin, the same thing as at sea-level? The answer should be an unqualified yes. But it is not. Physiologists say—"We do not know—cannot know until careful experiments are tried."

The difference can be only slight. There is a little more oxygen proportionately at 40,000 feet, a little less carbon dioxide. Yet in medical experience such slight things occasionally have unexpected effects on some susceptible persons. So the physiological studies of the stratosphere are going ahead, even more quietly than the plans for the stratosphere planes.

Hasbrouck No Longer Connected With the Uptown Bus Terminal

Matthew Hasbrouck of Mt. Tremper, who conducted the Uptown Bus Terminal in the former Van-Ross Hotel on Crown street, and who leased the new terminal from the Metropolitan Insurance Company following the razing of the old hotel building, has terminated his lease with the company and is no longer connected with the bus terminal. Mr. Hasbrouck stated that a misunderstanding between himself and the owners of the property caused him to sever his connections. The difference arose over the payment of improvements and alterations in the terminal building which Mr. Hasbrouck expected to have done by the owners.

The entire terminal, including the restaurant, will now be operated by Mildred Connelly and Lulu Coddington, who had leased the restaurant from Mr. Hasbrouck. They will now manage the terminal as well as operate the restaurant, having leased the entire property. Both Mrs. Coddington and Mrs. Connelly are well known in restaurant circles in Kingston. For some time they operated the Triangle Restaurant at Albany avenue and St. James street, and later conducted the Richfield Restaurant at 673 Broadway. Their new restaurant at the Uptown Terminal will be ready for operation next week.
